Church Business

by Al Behel,

May 31, 2009 church bulletin, Minister at the Great Smoky Mountains Church of Christ
© 2009 by Al Behel – may be reprinted for non-profit purposes only.

Sometimes I consult with businesses about improving their performance or making their business more profitable. This week I worked with a national chain with more than 800 business locations throughout the United States. They are successful because there is a constant focus on improving customer satisfaction and delivering the best service possible.

Fifty percent of new businesses fail in the first year and 95% fail in the first five years. While there are other factors contributing to their failure, many of them fail because they fail to recognize that the business of business is not business, but the business of business is people. When there are no customers or consumers, there is no business.

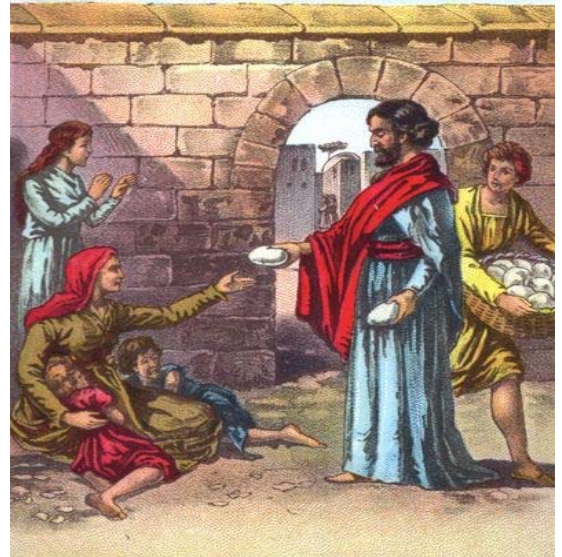

When Jesus was unintentionally left behind in Jerusalem at age 12, his frantic parents returned to find him in the temple discussing Scripture with the teachers of the law. When they verbally reprimanded him, he responded, "Did you not know that I must be about my Father's business?" A provocative question! Does that mean God has a business? Yes, his business is people; People who are lost and need a Savior; People who cannot save themselves.

God's business is church business. It is the business of the Kingdom. While there is no product to peddle, there is a message to be shared, a grace to be experienced, and a redemption to be received. God's business is our business. We are about the Father's business. That's the business of the church.

When the church ceases to focus on the needs of people it will face a sudden demise. Henry Ford said a man should never leave his business, but should think of it by day and dream of it by night.

Our Father's business is open 24 hours a

To the least of these

day. It never closes, but welcomes the downtrodden, the lonely, the alienated, and struggling sinners. Mediocrity is not enough. We must provide exceptional service.

Our Father's business requires dedicated servants whose primary goal is the success of the business. They think about it by day and dream about it by night. They know that its success depends on their continuous and effective performance, doing the Father's will.

Conducting People Business

by Ronnie E Cooper

The Church is people working with people for people, like the principle given by Abraham Lincoln for governing our nation: it is to be of the people, by the people, and for the people. People business requires involving people.

When Jesus was unintentionally left behind in Jerusalem at age 12, his frantic parents returned to find him in the temple discussing Scripture with the teachers of the law. When they verbally reprimanded him, he responded, "Did you not know that I must be about my Father's business?" By this example, Jesus is showing what God's business is about, discussing scripture. That would be the Old Testament (OT) as we view it.

Years ago, I was taught the OT was the New Testament (NT) foretold and the NT was the OT explained. As such, we cannot study or discuss the Bible intelligently without studying both – the whole. Today that is especially true with the first 11 chapters of Genesis. Yet it does not end there. Spiritualizing the Bible is done out of context by many personal interpretations. The Bible best interprets itself, another reason for us to study the whole book (OT+NT).

Beginning at the beginning is letting God be the Creator and hence our designer and our potential teacher. Jesus was indicated to be a teacher at age 12. He had a great relationship with His Father! God knows the rules and set them down in one simple place, Exodus 20, the Ten Commandments (that's the ones Jesus did not come to destroy, but to fulfill).

There are three important divisions to those Ten Commandments. The first four delineate how to relate to God. The last six legislate how to relate with others, society. The third part links these two parts. The third part relates to the family. Both the 3rd and the 4th commandments describe the family: you and your sons and daughters, or you honoring your parents. These are the purpose and the promise commands. The purpose is for parents to weekly teach about God the Creator: six days of intelligent working for our good, six days of wisdom displayed, six days of establishing all of nature and the universe. God made the rules.

The promise is related to the purpose being fulfilled. Children who obey God's rules they learned from their parents tend to establish habits and attitudes for longer life!

People business is maintaining this cycle of protecting and enabling families to teach their children who God the Creator really is. Then they will want what God wants us all to have, including eternal peace and life.

Prayer Requests

Please be in prayer for the ministry of the Ark Foundation.

- Funds still needed to complete "6 Days of Creation" DVD and Time Machine trailer
- For Ray and Tammy in developing the trailer ministry
- For the Lord to use the Ark Foundation in strengthening believers and draw unbelievers to Himself
- Wisdom for Ron and the board in the direction Ark should take
- New church contacts
- More believers learn about and take advantage of Ark's resources
- Open up opportunities/locations for presenting seminars and traveling presentations
- More volunteers, financial partners, and prayer partners.

Status of The Kroger Reward Program

After three months on the program Arky received its first check. And that was from only about half of the people using cards that were picked up. To those of you who started using your card, THANK YOU. To the rest, please start using your card and benefit Arky when you shop. (see the April 2009 newsletter for details on the program or call 256-2759 for information).

People Business – Founders Style

by Ronnie E Cooper

© 2009 by The ARK Foundation of Dayton – may be reprinted for non-profit purposes only.

In the years after 1776, our USA founding fathers grew up following the Biblical principles their parents (home schools using the Bible) and the schools of that day used (literacy rate was 98% before public schools). Those Biblical principles established our Constitution, so says those same founders in their writings.

When they finally agreed on a Constitution, it was contingent on adding personal rights, our Bill of Rights. Those 10 Amendments to our Constitution should be well remembered and protected, especially today, as they are eroded worse than our bridges and roads. We still have the tracks to follow, but they have been so abused they will soon lose their usefulness unless quickly restored.

To assist our readers we are going to describe those rights, quote them, restate the most attacked, the 2nd, and show the 1828 definitions supporting the restatement with all its wordy detail that our leaders seem to have ignored or forgotten. Given our public education does not teach them, we should not be surprised. Now you can teach yourself, your children, your classes, even your elected representatives. This will make a difference, if we continue to remember and teach these things and their basis for reality.

The Bill of Rights Amendments are described below three ways: a) without political correctness (not as the newspaper state them, but briefly as they were meant to be) and then, b) quoted in their entirety, c) then with 1828 definitions to expand the 2nd, for clarity and understanding of its real meaning as an example:

Bill of Rights without political correctness (not as the newspapers state them, but briefly as they were meant to be); For the Bill of Rights quoted in their entirety; go to arky.org... for a printable copy.

1st – Freedom of the people to think and act for their religious and political benefit; No National Religion Establishment Clause, Free Exercise of (Biblical) Religion Clause; freedom of speech, of the press, Freedom of Religion, and of assembly; right to petition.

2nd – Freedom of the people to protect their person, home, and country with their own arms (guns and ammunition, etc.). The loosely organized local citizens (Militia) established and maintained a free state by the people's right to keep and bear arms. [A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed.]

3rd – Freedom of the people from soldiers forcefully being quartered (room & board) in their homes. The people are protected from their government quartering outside troops in their homes.

4th – Freedom of the people from unreasonable governmental search or seizure. The people are protected from unreasonable search and seizure of their person or property by their government.

5th – Freedom of the people from unjust charges or confiscations from government. The people must have due process and protection from double jeopardy, self-incrimination, eminent domain from their government and courts.

6th – Freedom of the people to a speedy and just process for trial. Right of speedy public trial by jury with right to counsel and rights of the accused to confront accusers and demand witnesses on their behalf 7th – Freedom of the people to a Common Law trial by jury, not governmental courts.

8th – Freedom of the people from government oppression in bail or punishment. Prohibition of excessive bail and cruel and unusual punishment.

9th – Freedom of the people to retain all rights not listed. Protection of rights for the people not specifically enumerated in the Constitution (includes amendments).

10th – Freedom of the people to retain other powers not given to government. Powers of States and people are retained and not given to their government.

Bill of Rights 2nd Amendment example with 1828 definitions to expand for clarity and understanding of its real meaning:

Amendment II – restated in today’s language using original 1828 definitions and original practices (a bit wordy, but far more descriptive):

An adequately ordered force of free people (citizens) constantly ready for protecting, defending, and maintaining their geography in national, but especially in state, local, and home emergencies. This requires the people, that is, it is indispensable, necessary, essential for the people, to have the just liberty of carrying, wearing, holding, and training with weapons of offense, or armor for defense and protection of the body for attack or defense in war or hostility in open or concealed manners. Such arms are maintained by the people to keep off or hinder approach or attack of an enemy or an evil. These rights can be improved by the state, but not violated either positively by contravention or by non-fulfillment or neglect of performance or by process to destroy or hinder; as, to infringe efficacy. Arms are the entire system required, as guns, ammunition, sights, knives, magazines, etc. are included. The arms are the same as used by the regular military for protecting the state, community, and/or home. The government cannot restrict or tax or impede or hinder the distribution or storage or use or procurement of arms by the people!

The following are brief Webster’s 1828 Dictionary definitions of the terms in this amendment as used above (complete definitions are about eight pages with examples):

WELL: In a proper manner; justly; rightly, skillfully, thoroughly; fully, adequately.

REGULATED: Adjusted by rule, method or forms; put in good order; subjected to rules or restrictions.

NECESSARY: That must be; that cannot be otherwise; Indispensable; requisite; essential; that cannot be otherwise without preventing the purpose intended; subjection to law is necessary to the safety of persons and property. Unavoidable; as a necessary inference or consequence from facts or arguments. Acting from necessity or compulsion; opposed to free. Whether man is a necessary or a free agent is a question much discussed.

MILITIA: The body of soldiers in a state enrolled for discipline, but not engaged in actual service except in emergencies, but at other times left to pursue their usual occupations.

SECURITY: Protection; effectual defense or safety from danger of any kind; That which protects or guards from danger; Freedom from fear or apprehension; confidence of safety; whence, negligence in providing means of defense. Security is dangerous, for it exposes men to attack when unprepared.

FREE: Being at liberty; not being under necessity or restraint, physical or moral; In government, not enslaved; not in a state of vassalage or dependence; subject only to fixed laws, made by consent, and to a regular administration of such laws; not subject to the arbitrary will of a sovereign or lord; as a free state, nation or people. Instituted by a free people, or by consent or choice of those who are to be subjects, and securing private rights and privileges by fixed laws and principles; not arbitrary or despotic; as a free constitution or government. There can be no free government without a democratical branch in the constitution.

STATE: A political body, or body politic; the whole body of people united under one government, whatever may be the form of the government.

RIGHT: Conformity to the will of God, or to his law, the perfect standard of truth and justice. Conformity to human laws, or to other human standard of truth, propriety or justice. When laws are definite, right and wrong are easily ascertained and understood. Justice; that which is due or proper; as, to do right to every man. Property; interest. Just claim; immunity; privilege. All men have a right to the secure enjoyment of life, personal safety, liberty and property.

PEOPLE: The body of persons who compose a community, town, city or nation. The “people” comprehends all classes of inhabitants, considered as a collective body, or any portion of the inhabitants of a city or country.

KEEP: To hold; to retain in one’s power or possession; not to lose or part with; To have in custody for security or preservation; To preserve from falling or from danger; to protect; to guard or sustain; To hold in any state; as, to keep in order. To practice; to use habitually; To maintain; not to intermit; as, to keep watch or guard. To conceal; not to tell or disclose. To restrain; to curb. To keep off, to hinder from approach or attack; as, to keep off an enemy or an evil.

BEAR: To carry; to convey; to support and remove from place to place; to wear;

ARMS: Weapons of offense, or armor for defense and protection of the body for attack or defense in war or hostility. [The entire system required, as a gun, ammunition, sights, knives, magazines, etc. are included. The arms are the same as used by the regular military for protecting the state.]

INFRINGE: To break, as contracts; to violate, either positively by contravention, or negatively by non-fulfillment or neglect of performance. To break; to violate; to transgress; to neglect to fulfill or obey; To destroy or hinder; as, to infringe efficacy.

Scientific Truths of the Bible Part 4: The Heavens Declare His Glory

By Mark Jurkovich

Have you ever noticed how many verses in the Bible speak of the heavens? I count at least two dozen. And many of these reveal unique knowledge of astronomy that modern man has only recently rediscovered.

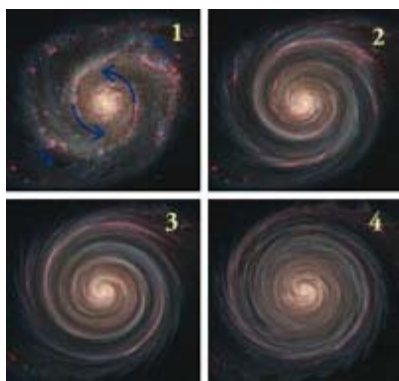

Some examples are:

- Too many stars to count - Gen 15:5
- Earth suspended on nothing (as opposed to the back of Atlas) – Job 26:7
- Universe wearing out (2nd law of thermodynamics) - Psalm 102:25-27
- Earth is round - Isaiah 40:22
- Heavens stretched out – Isaiah 42:5 & others

But doesn't astronomy prove that the universe is billions of years old? I even had a coworker tell me once that the vast distances of the universe keeps him from believing the Bible. In truth, many astronomical facts contradict evolutionary cosmology, even pointing to a young universe. In addition, promising theories are being developed which fits the Biblical framework.

One recent discovery which goes against evolutionary cosmology comes from the Hubble Space telescope. When they trained it on the deepest reaches of the universe, they expected to peer in the distant past and see just young galaxies, when in fact these distant galaxies are mature, just like nearby ones.

Conversely, if the universe was billions of years old, there should be more things that look 'old'. For example, stars near the center of galaxies orbit around the center faster than stars farther out. So spiral galaxies should eventually be all 'twisted up' and lose its spiral pattern. Therefore, all the spiral galaxies we see cannot be billions of years old. (<http://www.answersingenesis.org/articles/tba/age-of-the-universe-2>)

When we look at our own solar system, we see plenty that points to a young age. Here are just a few examples:

- Before the first probe made it to the outer planets, Dr. Russ Humphreys correctly predicted planetary magnetic fields based on a Biblical time scale, while evolutionary predictions fell short.
- Comets only last thousands of years. Only by theorizing the existence of an unproven Ort cloud can evolutionists explain how comets can still be around.
- Every year the moon moves just a little farther away from the earth (called recession). Which means it was closer in the past. Less than one billion years ago, the moon would have been so close, tidal forces would have been devastating to the earth.

Then there is the anthropic principal, which addresses the fact that the universe looks like it was fine tuned just for life to exist on earth. Some of these examples are:

- the sun is just the right size and temperature for life (and more stable than similar stars)
- the earth is at just the right distance for a stable water cycle, and the right gravity to retain enough water but not too much ammonia and methane
- the moon is the right size and distance to create just the right tidal forces needed for ocean life
- our solar system's distance from the center of the milky way galaxy is also appropriate to prevent too much cosmic radiation from hitting earth.
- Even on an elementary particle level, if a proton's mass was just 0.2% greater, it would be unstable. The elements as we know them wouldn't exist.

Finally, I recommend Dr. Humphreys' book Starlight and Time, (Master Books, 1994). In it he introduces a promising Bible based theory which allows for billions of years to elapse for parts of the universe while only thousands elapsed in our solar system.

Hey, kids! TJ here, and I'm a storybook writer. I've got some great titles of stories that I plan to write and they're right out of the Bible! The Bible is chock full of mystery and mayhem, enterprise and intrigue, creativity and caution, and much, much more! I thought it would be fun to see how many of you youngsters can guess where these titles originated from. Remember, God's Word may have been written by human hands, but it's straight from the heart and mind of God. Wow! That means that our God is creative, dramatic, loving (of course), and a great story-teller!

Well, here we go! See if you can find the Bible reference to the following story titles. The answers will be in the next ARKY newsletter. Good Hunting!

1. The Floating Logs

- 2. The First Piggy Bank
- 3. The Day The Earth Was Divided
- 4. City of Refuge
- 5. When God's Weather Changed History
- 6. C.S.I.- The Case of The Tingling Ears
- 7. Raiders of the Philistine Camp!
- 8. C.S.I. – The Case of the Floating Axe
- 9. C.S.I.- The Case of the Walking, Talking Trees
- 10. The Traveling Light

If anyone can find the answers to all 10 titles (clues), send me an email with the answers.

A special prize awaits you. Sorry, but kids only. Until next time, kids!

C-ya, TJ! (tjcollins@donet.com)
