An ARKY Proclamation of Liberty and Responsibility

by Ronnie E Cooper

In 2014, citizens of the United States of America who believe in the principles of its original and amended written Constitution do hereby proclaim their rights and obligations to still be according to the original intent of our founders as interpreted by the founders and written in their own writings and notes, e.g. The Congressional Record or the Federalists Papers or the Declaration of Independence, etc.

Those who do not espouse these obvious and well described principles are actually working against their own liberty and freedom. Such people who sacrifice liberty for safety deserve neither (Benjamin Franklin). Their desire for an expansive government do themselves a disservice making themselves servants dependent on government rather than being independent adults "pursuing their own happiness" as stated in the Declaration of Independence.

Further, we take personal responsibility for not having confronted such thinking in the marketplace of ideas. We are guilty of sins of omission by not standing up and speaking up for liberty in the public square. We proclaim the Declaration of Independence still lists the same woes today that drove our Founders to the common sense solutions of our Constitution. We need to defend said written Constitution by our lives, our fortunes, and our intellect. Such actions needed include:

- Teaching all of American history, especially the religious beliefs and trials of its key leaders.
- Training ourselves, our families, and our leaders by sufficient academic trials to gain these truths and act in their roles accordingly.
- Defend our Christian heritage by proclaiming it in every city, town, hamlet, jail, school, and ceremony.
- Restore the leadership to Godly people who believe God and serve Him in their daily lives.
- Defend those who lead by changing our paths to their original routes and restoring our liberties as God created them.
- Destroying such artificial rights as our enemies have used to usurp the will to earn a living or the love of country that creates real opportunities for fruitful advancement.

Lies in the Textbooks Part 6: So Called Evidence of Evolution

By Mark Jurkovich

Last time we showed that several famous “proof of evolution” examples are not proofs at all. This article will cover several other common examples touted as evidence for evolution. Now the lines between “proof” and “evidence” are rather blurred when it comes to evolution. But I have attempted to divide them as best as I could tell based on how they are described by evolutionary writing. The so called evidences I will cover today are known as Homology, Haeckel’s lie, and vestigial organs.

The homology argument (or sometimes referred to as comparative anatomy) is based on common structures between animals, claiming that this indicates a common evolutionary ancestor. A problem with this argument is that there are so many common structures between animals that cannot have “evolved from a common ancestor” that they had to come up with a related term. This term was coined “analogy”, defined as similarity due to common function. In the case of the eye, it would have to evolve independently up to 60 times! Even one time for the eye to evolve is beyond belief, once you understand the utter complexity of the eye and the brain functions to process its signals. Other problems abound, but I’ll have to leave that for you the reader to study on your own.

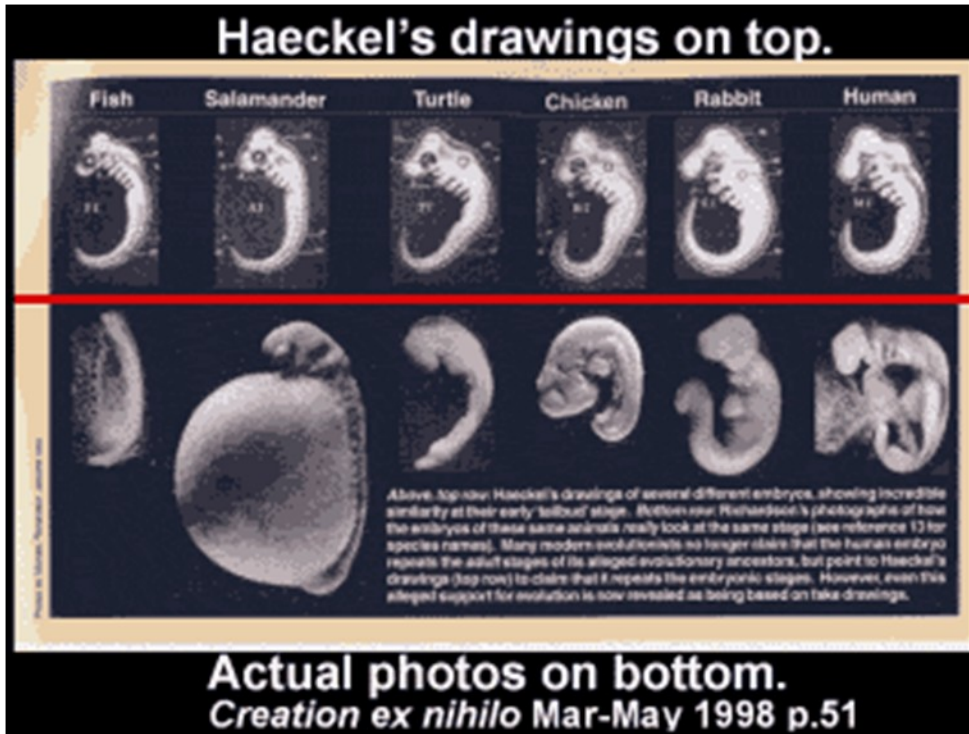

A much more reasonable explanation for common structures are that they came from the same designer. Homology was actually understood this way before Darwin redefined it. “Before Darwin, homology observations were explained by a concept called ideal archetypes, meaning the Creator used the superior design prototype throughout His Creation. A branch of this worldview now is called intelligent design theory.”¹

Related to the homology argument is the supposed embryonic similarity between species. This was put forward by Ernst Haeckel in 1868 when he presented drawings of human and animal embryos. His claim was that we go through evolutionary stages in the developing embryo, “the biogenetic law”. The problem was, he faked the drawings, and was denounced by his peers over 140 years ago! Yet variations of his comparisons persist to this day. School texts still say the human embryo has gills like a fish. These folds of skin however, are not gill slits, but develop into bones in the ear and glands in the throat.²

Supposed vestigial organs are touted as being evolutionary leftovers. These are claimed to be organs that no longer serve a useful function, but once did in our evolutionary past. In the 1800’s it was thought the human body had over 180 vestigial organs. But today virtu-

Demagogue and the Ruling Party or Moral Values Leaders?

by Ronnie E Cooper

Who do you wish to lead you? I would hope we would choose good moral leaders. That can happen if there is a good moral force driving our practices, our worldview. Another word for this is praxis¹ or process used for such good. The family and the church are intended to be such a praxis for life and politics (the science of morality, especially good, in government). Moral values are not good by natural causes. They must be nurtured at home and school. The Church is responsible for holding up those moral lights of God to men from God's Word.

In Ohio the Northwest Ordinance was the treaty of July 13, 1787 before our Constitution was even written that required expansion of civil and religious liberty (Sec. 13; Sec. 14, Art.1, and Art. 3). This "religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged".

At our ARK Annual banquet on June 9 our informed speaker, Thomas W. Hagedorn, shall speak to the early role of education and morality as being Christian. Come learn the precedence for what the Northwest Territories have above all states in this regard. Our speaker, has written the book, Founding Zealots: How Evangelicals Created America's First Public Schools, 1783-1865, as a history lesson worth taking and using.

Again, who do you wish to lead you? We have people who speak to please the people and influence them by ungodly practices (human sacrifice, promotion of sloth, worship of false gods) and by buying their confidence, stealing property through taxes, ruining businesses through regulation, and by many unneeded laws making daily life subject to government monitoring, interference, excessive taxation, and thought control.

Now through a good orator (demagogue²) our culture (hegemony³) has fundamentally changed by division of Americans (factious⁴) being pitted against each other.

In short, a demagogue with Marxism⁵ Hegemony is using factious praxis to fundamentally change America!

Scriptural thoughts in response: (NKJV)

When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; But when a wicked man rules, the people groan. Prov 29:2 — but remember —

The king's heart is in the hand of the Lord, Like the rivers of water; He turns it wherever He wishes. Prov. 21:1

Definitions:

1. Praxis (think, Common Practice or perhaps Common Law) The process by which a theory, lesson, or skill is enacted, practiced, embodied, or realized. "Praxis" may also refer to the act of engaging, applying, exercising, realizing, or practicing ideas. This has been a recurrent topic in the field of philosophy, discussed in the writings of Plato, Aristotle, St. Augustine, Immanuel Kant, Søren Kierkegaard, Karl Marx, Martin Heidegger, Hannah Arendt, Paulo Freire, Ludwig von Mises, and many others. It has meaning in the political, educational, and spiritual realms.

2. Demagogue, n. Demagog. [Gr. The populus, and to lead.] (think, wolf in sheep's clothing)

A political leader who tries to get support by making false claims and promises and using arguments based on emotion rather than reason

3. Hegemony (think, Worldview)

The theory of cultural domination (an analysis of economic class) to include social class; hence, the philosophic and sociologic theory of cultural hegemony analyzed the social norms that established the social structures (social and economic classes) with which the ruling class establish and exert cultural dominance to impose their Weltanschauung (world view)—justifying the social, political, and economic status quo—as natural, inevitable, and beneficial to every social class, rather than as artificial social constructs beneficial solely to the ruling class.

4. Factious, a. [L. factiosus.] (think, divider or destroyer)

a. Given to faction; addicted to form parties and raise dissensions, in opposition to government; turbulent; prone to clamor against public measures of men. No state is free from factious citizens.

b. Pertaining to faction; proceeding from faction; as factious tumults; factious quarrels.

5. Marxism (think, destroy Liberty, raise tyrannical leaders)

The 19th century socialist Antonio Labriola called Marxism the Philosophy of praxis. Marx alluded to this concept in his Theses on Feuerbach when he stated that "philosophers have only interpreted the world in various ways; the point is to change it." Simply put, Marx felt that philosophy's validity was in how it informed action. Georg Lukács held that the task of political organization is to establish professional discipline over everyday political praxis, consciously designing the form of mediation best suited to clear interactions between theory and practice.

- Defend life from before conception in our morals and true love of family until natural death.
- Defend our liberty to do good and hate evil, to love our creator God and teach such things in every school in our land without non-local interference of government, yet promoting religion and morals for all children by our best efforts and love in safe defended schools.
- Defend private property and inheritance laws of citizens against all laws imposing tyranny of government and removing free trade between individual citizens or churches.

Contact arky@arky.org if your organization would also like to proclaim these things and sign on.

Quotable Quotes

- If you think health care is expensive now, wait until you see what it costs when it's free! -- P.J. O'Rourke
- In general, the art of government consists of taking as much money as possible from one party of the citizens to give to the other. -- Voltaire (1764)
- Just because you do not take an interest in politics doesn't mean politics won't take an interest in you! -- Pericles (430 B.C.)
- Talk is cheap...except when Congress does it. -- Anonymous

CONCENTRATION

A Joyful 'toon by Mike Waters

You will keep in perfect peace him whose mind is steadfast, because he trusts in you.
— ISAIAH 26:3 NIV

ally all those organs have been shown to serve useful purposes. Yet some, like the coccyx (tail bone), are still used as supposed vestigials. It is still thought of as the last vestiges of the tail we used to have. But it is the attachment point for 9 muscles required for several valuable functions, and having nothing to do with being a leftover tail.

Vestigial organs are claimed for other animals as well. Some small bones in the whale are claimed to be a vestigial pelvis, from the supposed time when their ancestors walked on land. But these bones serve a vital function in enabling reproduction, and nothing to do with a fictional past when they walked on land.³

Once again evolution's supposed strongest arguments are shown to not be very good evidence at all. Under the light of truth, they instead show the work of a loving omnipotent creator.

Meet The Camel

If you ever doubted that God exists, meet the Very Technical, Highly Engineered Dromedary Camel.

by Bob Devine

When I'm hungry, I'll eat almost anything—a leather bridle, a piece of rope, my master's tent, or a pair of shoes.

My mouth is so tough a thorny cactus doesn't bother it. I love to chow down grass and other plants that grow here on the Arabian desert.

I'm a dromedary camel, the one-hump kind that lives on hot deserts in the Middle East.

My hump, all eighty pounds of it, is filled with fat—my body fuel—not water as some people believe. My Mighty Maker gave it to me because He knew I wouldn't always be able to find food as I travel across the hot sands. When I don't find any chow, my body automatically takes fat from the hump, feeds my system, and keeps me going strong. This is my emergency food supply.

If I can't find any plants to munch, my body uses up my hump. When the hump gets smaller, it starts to tip to one side. But when I get to a nice oasis and begin to eat again, my hump soon builds back to normal.

I've been known to drink twenty-seven gallons of water in ten minutes. My Master Designer made me in such a fantastic way that in a matter of minutes all the water I've swallowed travels to the billions of microscopic cells that make up my flesh.

Naturally, the water I swallow first goes into my stomach. There thirsty blood vessels absorb and carry it to every part of my body. Scientists have tested my stomach and found it empty ten minutes after I've drunk twenty gallons.

In an eight hour day I can carry a four hundred pound load a hundred miles across a hot, dry desert and not stop once for a drink or something to eat. In fact, I've been known to go eight days without a drink, but then I look a wreck. I lose 227 pounds, my ribs show through my skin, and I look terribly skinny. But I feel great! I look thin because the billions of cells lose their water. They're no longer fat. They're flat.

Normally my blood contains 94 percent water, just like yours. But when I can't find any water to drink, the heat of the sun gradually robs a little water out of my blood. Scientists have found that my blood can lose up to 40 percent of its water, and I'm still healthy.

Doctors say human blood has to stay very close to 94 percent water. If you lose 5 percent of it, you can't see anymore; 10 percent, you can't hear and you go insane; 12 percent, your blood is as thick as molasses and your heart can't pump the thick stuff. It stops, and you're dead.

But that's not true with me. Why? Scientists say my blood is different. My red cells are elongated. Yours are round. Maybe that's what makes the difference.

This proves I'm designed for the desert, or the desert is designed for me.

Did you ever hear of a design without a Designer?

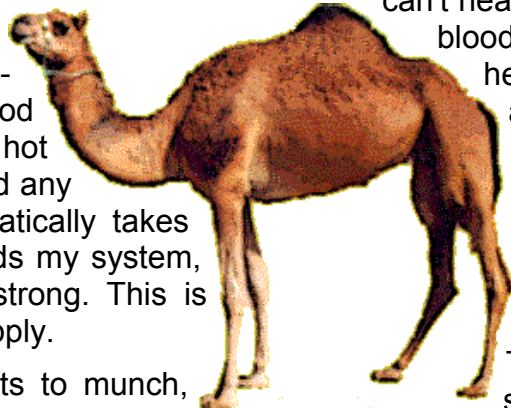

After I find a water hole, I'll drink for about ten minutes and my skinny body starts to change almost immediately. In that short time my body fills out nicely, I don't look skinny anymore, and I gain back the 227 pounds I lost.

Even though I lose a lot of water on the desert, my body conserves it too. Way in the beginning when my intelligent Engineer made me,

He gave me a specially designed nose that saves water. When I exhale, I don't lose much. My nose traps that warm, moist air from my lungs and absorbs it in my nasal membranes.

Tiny blood vessels in those membranes take that back into my blood. How's that for a recycling system? Pretty cool, isn't it. It works because my nose is cool. My cool nose changes that warm moisture in the air from my lungs into water.

But how does my nose get cool? I breath in hot dry desert air, and it goes through my wet nasal passages. This produces a cooling effect, and my nose stays as much as 18 degrees cooler than the rest of my body.

I love to travel the beautiful sand dunes. It's really quite easy, because my Creator gave me specially engineered sand shoes for feet. My hooves are wide, and they get even wider when I step on them.

Each foot has two long, bony toes with tough, leathery skin between. My soles are a little like webbed feet. They won't let me sink into the soft, drifting sand. This is good, because often my master wants me to carry him one hundred miles across the desert in just one day. (I troop about ten miles per hour.)

Sometimes a big windstorm comes out of nowhere, bringing flying sand with it. My Master Designer put special muscles in my nostrils that close the openings, keeping sand out of my nose, but still allowing me enough air to breathe.

My eyelashes arch down over my eyes like screens, keeping the sand and sun out but still letting me see clearly. If a grain of sand slips through and gets in my eye, the Creator took care of that too. He gave me an inner eyelid that automatically wipes the sand off my eyeball just like a windshield wiper.

Some people think I'm conceited because I always walk around with my head held high and my nose in the air. But that's just because of the way I'm made. My eyebrows are so thick and busy I have to hold my head high to peek out from underneath them. I'm glad I have them though. They shade my eyes from the bright sun.

Desert people depend on me for many things. Not only am I their best form of transportation, but I'm also their grocery store. Mrs. Camel gives very rich milk that people make into butter and cheese. I shed my thick fur coat once a year, and that can be woven into cloth. A few young camels are used for beef, but I don't like to talk about that.

For a long time we camels have been called the "ships of the desert" because of the way we sway from side to side when we trot. Some of our riders get seasick.

I sway from side to side because of the way my legs work. Both legs on one side move forward at the same time, elevating that side. My "left, right left, right" motion makes my rider feel like he is in a rocking chair going sideways.

When I was six months old, special knee pads started to grow on my front legs. The intelligent Creator knew I had to have them. They help me lower my 1000 pounds to the ground. If I didn't have them, my knees would soon become sore and infected, and I could never lie down. I'd die of exhaustion.

By the way, I don't get thick knee pads because I fall on my knees. I fall on my knees because I already have these tough pads. Someone very great thought of me and knew I needed them. He designed them into my genes.

It's real difficult for me to understand how some people say I evolved into what I now am. I'm the very technical, highly engineered dromedary camel. Things like me don't just happen. They're planned on a drawing board by Someone very brilliant; Someone very logical.

John 1:1 says, "In the beginning was the Word. And the Word was with God, and the Word was God." The Word means "logical, intelligent One."

Verse 3 says, "All things were made by him and without him was not anything made that was made."

Who was the Word? Look at verse 14. "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory."

Who was made all flesh? The Lord Jesus Christ, the Word who created everything, including the dromedary camel.

(TEEN) Kids KornerSave the world

Hey, kids, TJ here. I have a special request for you to consider. I'd like for you to consider becoming a special agent this summer in an effort to help 'Save the world!' Special agents all around the Dayton and surrounding areas will be undergoing training for a special cause. If you're between the ages of 12-18, and are a believer in Christ, you qualify for the special training. The training lasts for one week on the campus of Cedarville University and includes meeting new friends, laughing alot, and learning some very special skills. Ok, I'm sure you're wondering by now what the cause is, what kind of special agent you'll become and, most important, how you can help 'Save the world.' The cause is simple; share the gospel, pray with children from different neighborhoods each week, and save some...for the cause of Christ. For heaven's sake, get busy for the future of the children! Be trained to lead a dynamic club, teach a Bible lesson, read about real life missionaries, lead songs, play games, counsel a child for salvation, and have loads of fun while doing it all! Sound great? Well, it is great, and I know from first hand experience how cool it is to lead a child towards salvation in Jesus Christ. It's totally rockin' going to different locations from week to week and starting all over again with a new group of kids. It's called a 5 Day Club; 5 days at the same location, and then you change locations. You're with other teenagers who love the Lord and want to see others come to know the awesomeness of who Jesus really is. Sound great, yet? One more thing that might help you decide. You will feel like a HERO, and you will be to the children you'll work with, you will make a difference, and you get out of the house to have fun with new friends while building memories that last a lifetime. Ready to sign up? Call the CEF of the Miami Valley office and talk to Jan or Betsy. It's the best summer you will ever have! Call: 937-274-9781. Oh, yeah, tell 'em TJ sent ya. Until next time kiddies! C-ya!

<http://www.cefmv.org/>

PS. You'll be in an elite group called, CYIA - Christian Youth In Action. Get signed up now! Training starts in April!

ARKY's Calendar of Events (as of 4/3/14)

See more details and complete list at <http://www.arky.org/current/index.htm>

Apr 14: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: The Christian Roots of Science by Jonathan Sarfati at ARKY's House. How modern science flourished under a Christian worldview. Learn how the Christian worldview provided the assumptions required for comprehending how science worked at all. Also learn the real truth about Galileo and the myth of flat-earth belief.

April 21: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. Patriots Day, Not Tax Day! with Speakers TBD at ARKY's House(?). The Day we should celebrate (like Massachusetts) as "Patriots Day" when the Americans stood up to the British Empire (big government) and said "NO"!

Apr 28: 6:00 pm until 8:00 pm. Expert on Constitutional and Historical Issues DAVID BARTON IS COMING TO TOWN at Urbana University, Warren G Grimes Center - 579 College Way, Urbana, OH. Ph: (937) 726-6866. Call for free tickets. Sponsored by Champaign County.

May 13: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: Things That Go Bump in the Night & Annual Meeting with Dr Danny Faulkner at ARKY's House. Do black holes exist? What about dark matter? Dark energy? Weren't these things just made up to salvage evolutionary ideas? The author explores these topics and separates the issues of physics and good science from evolutionary musings. You'll learn that there is a good case for black holes with no need of evolutionary involvement. There's a good case for dark matter, too, while dark energy is a bit more speculative. Black holes and dark matter quite literally take our understanding of physics to its breaking point, and they illustrate how God's creation holds many mysteries, while pointing undeniably to the Creator and Savior Himself! Members need to attend to vote at annual meeting for Directors.

Jun 9: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. ARK Annual Banquet - #19 with speaker Thomas W Hagedorn at MCL Cafeteria Kettering, 4485 Far Hills Ave (just north of David Rd) (299-6605), Dayton, OH. Ph: (937) 256-ARKY. Tom wrote, Founding Zealots: How Evangelicals Created America's First Public Schools, 1783-1865. Based upon exhaustive research, this shows that: Horace Mann's role as the founder of our public schools is a myth; Evangelicals -- many of them devout ministers and missionaries -- started the schools primarily to promote Christian evangelism and discipleship; Marxist theories underlay several of the accounts of mainstream historians.

Jul 14: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: Genesis 1:1 with Ken Ham at ARKY's House. The Foundational Verse of the Foundational Book! Enjoy this candid presentation as the author/speaker shares heartfelt concerns with a small group of pastors. Discover what drives him to continue delivering strong messages about biblical authority in today's scoffing world. While uncovering the deep meaning of each primary word in Genesis 1:1, it offers an expanded paraphrase that sheds great light on the rich meaning of the Bible's very first verse.

Aug 11: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: TBD at ARKY's House.

Sep 8: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: TBD.

Sep 17: Please help us plan for celebrating Constitution Day, September 17, 1787, when the delegates to the Constitutional Convention met for the last time to sign the document they had created.
