American Exceptionalism – Nationalistic Arrogance or Historical Fact? Something to Think About

By Ricki Pepin© - December 2014

American Exceptionalism. The very term evokes highly charged emotions backed by two very distinct schools of thought diametrically opposed to one another:

Traditionalists declare that America marches to a different drummer, its uniqueness seen through its history, size, geography, political institutions and culture. Progressives and many college professors reject this view, vigorously decrying America as an imperialist, bully nation with class-based and race-based inequalities. Which one is true?

Rather than adding yet another opinion to the mix, let's search for principles in our founding documents, ask some questions and define a couple of terms. Learning from history, so as to repeat the good and not the evil, involves more than memorizing dates and dead people. Some key questions need to be honestly answered, such as –

- Who were the people involved?
- What motivated them to do what they did?
- What methods did they use to achieve their objectives?
- Did it work?
- Was it ethical?
- Should it be repeated?

– Should it be avoided?

In 1620, the Pilgrims landed in America and penned the Mayflower Compact, stating their unique purpose for this new nation – “Having undertaken [this voyage to America] for the glory of God and advancement of the Christian faith...” Please note, they did not establish America as a Muslim, Buddhist, or pluralistic nation. They founded it under God, for His glory, to advance the Christian faith. This was an exceptional objective.

In 1776, Thomas Jefferson, the principle author of the Declaration of Independence, agreed with the Pilgrims' objective when he used the phrase “the laws of Nature and Nature's God” as the foundation for American law and government.

The first part of this phrase – the laws of Nature – is also known as Natural Law. Other civilizations (such as the Romans) used Natural Law as the basis of their legal system, so this was not an exceptional idea. Cicero, a prominent Roman statesman and political philosopher (106 BC), declared, “Natural Law is so understandable, so common-sense, so rea-

The Wonder of it All

By Mark Jurkovich

Have you ever stopped to take in a breathtaking sunset or natural landscape and sense a glimpse of the wonder of God's creation? Do you realize that this is how we should react on a daily basis? Everywhere we look is a testimony to His awesome, loving, creative power. As Paul states:

"For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead" (Romans 1:20, NKJV)

We are surrounded by the wonders of God's creation. But we are all guilty of taking it for granted.

From the sub atomic particle to the expanse of the universe, God's handiwork is clearly evident to those whose eyes are open to see it. Take the nucleus of atoms for example. The nucleus is composed of many protons and neutrons. These protons should repel each other, but something that has been defined as the nuclear binding energy keeps them together. Man can name it, and even measure it and make some predictions about it, but I don't think anyone can really say that they know why it works.¹ As one song from the late Rich Mullins says: "If He let go of us, we'd all blow apart".² I believe that aptly describes why the nuclear binding energy works.

As science continues to understand more and more of how living things work, rather than explaining God away with our growing knowledge, we are seeing more and more the vast complexity of all living things. As Paul also says they are "willingly ignorant" who continue to insist it all came about by chance processes.

"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin; and yet I say to you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." Matthew 6:28, 29, NKJV

Take for example photosynthesis, a big word that every grade school student learns. But that single word represents a highly complex and miraculous process without which no life would survive. "Hundreds of chemical reactions take place in perfect sequence, like a production line in a well-organized factory."³

Only God could have designed this amazing balance where plants convert energy from the sun to grow, reproduce

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS

A Joyful'toon by Mike Waters

Quotable Quotes

- A government that robs Peter to pay Paul can always depend on the support of Paul. -- George Bernard Shaw
- The government is like a baby's alimentary canal, with a happy appetite at one end and no responsibility at the other. -- Ronald Reagan

sonable that you need no one to interpret it for you.” In other words, man was the final arbiter of Natural Law.

What does make America exceptional is the second part of that phrase in the Declaration of Independence – The laws of Nature’s God. The short definition of this term is – “the moral law...contained in the 10 Commandments written by the finger of God.” (Webster’s 1828 Dictionary).

Sir William Blackstone, whose Commentaries on the Laws of England were widely read and studied by the founders, said it best – “Man, considered as a creature, must necessarily be subject to the laws of his Creator...it is necessary that he should in all points conform to... [the] law of his Maker... These laws... are the eternal immutable laws of good and evil...[and are] superior in obligation to any other... no human laws are of any validity if contrary to this...”

Simply summarized - American exceptionalism is two-fold:

- Its purpose – established for the glory of God and the advancement of the Christian faith.
- Its legal foundation – the laws of Nature AND Nature’s God - relying on God as the ultimate authority, not man’s reason alone.

Believing in American exceptionalism is not arrogance, but upholding it is an ongoing battle. Who is winning in the conflict of ideas and ideals – man’s “reason” or God’s law? In the natural world, no animal aborts their young before they’re born. Only humans do. Abortion violates both Natural Law and the Laws of Nature’s God (Exodus 20:13). In the animal kingdom, no creature naturally mates with one of the same sex. Only humans claim this un-natural act to be natural. Homosexuality violates both Natural Law and the Laws of Nature’s God (Romans 1:26-27). Wake up, America! What have we allowed in this exceptional nation under the re-definition of “choice” and “tolerance”?

Push back! What would adherence to this exceptional standard – the Laws of Nature and Nature’s God – look like in our families, in our communities? Would obeying God’s laws, rather than man’s (unreasonable) “reason”, bring life rather than death, healthy families rather than broken ones? Would teaching this standard to our children and grandchildren bring them a clearer sense of right and wrong? Could it create a hunger to discover the purpose for their own lives as Americans, as Christians?

American exceptionalism...arrogance or a tradition worthy of pursuit?

Something to think about.

and be a source of food for animals. Then even their waste products (water and oxygen) are used by animals, and the animals in turn produce carbon dioxide which the plants require.

So each time you see any plant or animal, even a blade of grass or your household pet, realize they are declaring the glory of our loving creator and savior. And let it remind you to rest on Him.

“Therefore I say to you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink; nor about your body, what you will put on. Is not life more than food and the body more than clothing?” (Matt 6:25, NKJV)

Racists, Red Herrings & Rhetoric... Oh My! Something to Think About

By Ricki Pepin© - November 2014

Are you tired of being slapped with the label “racist” whenever you speak against unconstitutional policies like affirmative action, amnesty for illegal aliens, or anyone who supports such efforts? Who benefits from rhetorical games in matters of equality and law?

Racist accusations such as these are the worst kind of red herrings. For any non-fishermen, an explanation is in order: The red herring is probably the smelliest fish that God put on this beautiful earth. For this reason, it is the best tool for training a good hunting dog. Trainers use a raccoon tail to drag across the ground, leaving its scent for the dog-in-training to follow. Somewhere along this trail, the pungent odor of a red herring is introduced over the top of the coon scent. Then the trail splits - the red herring going in one direction, the coon going in the other. Only the best of dogs will follow the coon scent, the original target, because the stink of the red herring is so overpowering.

Progressives seem to have a boatload of these red herrings and wield them endlessly against Constitutional arguments – rudely injecting a smelly distraction to divert people from the main trail. Affirmative action – making racial quotas for college or job entrance requirements – is a racist program, but not in the way the progressives frame it. Affirmative action is an insult to every person of color. Its very premise assumes non-whites are inferior and need help to compete with Caucasians. What possible connection could there be with the amount of melatonin in a person’s body (the hormone that produces skin pigment) to their readiness for college or jobs?

Affirmative action in education stinks. It keeps the most qualified applicants out. Worse, it allows those into college who are not qualified, setting up the most vulnerable for yet another failure. The majority drop out within their first year, unable to keep up academically. Those who support affirmative action give themselves a “high-five” for getting greater numbers of non-whites into these institutions. Do any of them follow up to see if these academically-challenged students need assistance to succeed once they are there? The drop-out rates would indicate they do not. Is this compassionate? Is this fair? Is this equality? Who benefits?

Affirmative action in hiring stinks. Those required to hire less qualified applicants are forced to spend precious resources on extra training, or oftentimes leave these positions empty as there are no applicants of the “right” color. Is this fair? Is this equitable? Who benefits?

What about amnesty for illegal aliens? Same stench from another reeking red herring. People who enter this country illegally are breaking the law. Their ethnicity or skin color is completely irrelevant. If I rob a bank, am I only guilty if my skin is the right/wrong color? What utter nonsense. It is the criminal act that requires the penalty of law enforcement and justice, regardless of my ethnicity.

So, why do we allow progressives to get away with this perverse, smelly game of rhetorical distortion? Why do we allow them to distract us from the real issues? Why has the race card been allowed into the debate of education and politics? Who benefits?

Only those whose political and social agendas outweigh true equality under the law and true compassion. Politicians who cannot win elections on the merits of their ideas often resort to name-calling, turning attention away from the real issue. Create the illusion that you are helping hapless victims (unqualified non-white students or job seekers, illegal immigrants, etc.) and a naïve voter bloc emerges that sees these malodorous red herring bearers as their hero.

Time for an air freshener – truth! America and Americans benefit when law is upheld, when compassion and opportunity join hands to help those who need a temporary hand up, not those who want a permanent hand out. Martin Luther King, in his famous I Have a Dream speech, said he dreamed of the day when a man would not be judged by the color of his skin, but by the content of his character. Right on, Brother. America is about equal opportunity under law – not privilege based on skin color or ethnicity.

Time to push back. Time to stop allowing progressives to sidetrack the real issues with their smelly accusations. I've had enough of red herrings and racial rhetoric. How about an intelligent discussion and true reform based on law and equality?

Something to think about.

Kids Korner

Hey, kids, TJ here. Hope all your Christmas wishes come true, if they're within God's plans for your life, part of God's providential will, and isn't greedy. What? What kind of a blessing is that? You might be thinking, "Where's the fun in that?" Well, truth is, kids, Christmas is not all about having fun, though, often we do have a great time with family and friends. There's usually no school, no work for most of our parents, and there's snow to play with! Not to mention, the gifts we bring. Did I say bring, when I meant get? See, often we think about what we want and who can get me the things I want for Christmas. We sometimes forget that Christmas is about giving. That's where the real joy comes from. It's also about the One gift that was sent to everyone on Planet Earth-God's one and only Son, Jesus Christ. Remember that scene that we see at a Live Nativity with Mary, Joseph and Baby Jesus in the animal stall? Usually, there are a few animals hanging around with them. That young baby grows up to be the Savior of the world and we celebrate His death AND resurrection at Easter. So, if I were to send you a truly meaningful card in honor of both Christmas and Easter, it would say something like this:

May the true meaning of Christmas (Christ coming from Heaven to Earth) and the realization of Easter (Christ dying for us then returning to His home in Heaven) remain with you all throughout the year.

May the Peace which passes understanding, through Christ Jesus, rest upon you and your family forever.

Because you are loved, TJ.

Hey, kids, write your own Christmas card this year. Let the people in your life know that you care about them. Until next time, kiddies, TJ signing out. Merry Christmas!

Mar 9: 7:00 pm until 8:35 pm. DVD: Blood Moons: Decoding the Imminent Heavenly Signs by Mark Biltz at ARKY's House. From the beginning, in Genesis, God declared He specifically created the sun and the moon to be used for signs. These heavenly bodies would be used as signs of coming dramatic historical events when the Creator of the universe would intersect with human history. But how do we unlock the code to interpret the signals? This DVD will show how through out history God, the Master Timekeeper, has used the heavenly bodies to communicate to us when significant events will happen. What are the feasts days? What is the difference between the biblical calendar and the one we use today? Why should you be concerned about eclipses in the sky? This answers these questions and more. It explains the importance of these biblical celebrations and milestones and shows how you too can be aware of the signs of things to come.

While uncovering the deep meaning of each primary word in Genesis 1:1, it offers an expanded paraphrase that sheds great light on the rich meaning of the Bible's very first verse.
